

ABSTRACT

The present invention describes a method for producing a stamping tool for the stamping of safety elements in surfaces of carrier materials via the following steps: a) creating a three-dimensional digitized template for the safety element, and b) transferring the digital data onto the stamping tool.